The primary result of mature religion is to help us grow up early so we don’t keep going down the same dead ends and making the same mistakes over and over again—“doing the same thing and expecting different results.”

Healthy religion names what’s real, what’s true, what really works, and what works in the long run—here and later.

This ultimate reality, the way things work, is quite simply described as love. Religion is supposed to teach us the way of love. Jesus even commanded it.

Dear Parents and Guardians

Year Five students received much praise for the quality of their Night of the Notables presentations on Monday and Tuesday evenings. We congratulate them on the enthusiasm and commitment with which they completed their presentations as well as their speeches.

Another good week draws to a close. Enjoy the weekend, and do keep the many children making their First Communion in your prayers.
